J. S. Chakravarti and that the matter would be favourably viewed by Government.

With reference to Mr. Anniah Pandit's observation that he understood that a scheme was also under preparation by the Muzrai Superintendent, the latter stated that the subject was taken up in connection with the opening of a career to the successful students of the Ayurvedic College which was under his control, that a memorandum on the subject was under preparation and that on being consulted, the Deputy Commissioners were able to testify to the general popularity of the existing Vaidyasalas.

Reply of Government.—Government will consider the suggestions favourably as far as possible. In selected areas the system proposed by Mr. Anniah Pandit will be tried as an experiment.

SUBJECT No. 372.

Grant of assessed waste lands for nominal upset price.

Mr. D. Venkataramaiya and other members of the Representative Assembly.

Summary of discussion.—It is prayed that deserving poor people be given assessed waste lands for a nominal upset price.

Reply of Government.—Noted.

SUBJECT No. 373.

Mode of determining average yield of crops.

Mr. D. Venkataramaiya and other members of the Representative Assembly.

Summary of discussion.—It is stated that the wet assessment on lands is based on a full consideration of the yield in good, middling and bad years. The method in which the average is arrived at, and the assessment fixed, may be investigated and made known to the public.

Reply of Government.— Noted. Will be enquired into.

SUBJECT No. 374.

Investment of Puduvat funds.

Mr. D. Venkataramaiya and other members of the Representative Assembly.

Summary of discussion.—Suitable arrangements may be made for the investment of Puduvat funds. Puduvat funds and surplus funds of institutions may be permitted to be deposited in Savings Banks and to earn interest.

It was pointed out that under the rules there was no objection to the Puduvat funds being so deposited and that the case was different as regards the surplus income, as the latter represented the savings from Tasdiks granted by Government and that even in that case, investments of all moneys not required by the temple in the immediate future were being made, which brought interest earnings to the temple. The question of the advisability of investing such funds in Co-operative Societies was also touched upon.

Reply of Government.—The whole question is one of security and there was no objection to place such funds where the security is thoroughly sound.

SUBJECT No. 375.

A Regulation to prevent cattle-lifting.

Mr. D. Venkataramiah and other members of the Representative Assembly.

Note.—Not discussed.
